I have owned every truck brand sold in America and the Ridgeline, hands down is the best driving truck I have had. The roads here are rough and slick in winter and this truck handles excellent on icy, snowy roads. The back end stays stable and it stops on a dime, without even changing to all winter tires. I agree this isn't a brute to take out on bad dirt roads, but for occasional truck needs and an everyday commuter, this is an excellent choice in all winter conditions Alaska has thrown at it. My Honda Ridgeline is exactly what I want and need. It was handed down to me by my parents, but for a vehicle that is 12 years old, it runs great. Smooth, reliable ride that I know I can always count on, no matter the weather, distance, terrain, or any other factor that would stop other cars. I also love many of the features, such as the well in the back, the swivel tailgate, and that the back window can open electronically. In addition, Honda really thought of the little things, such as when you hold the unlock button on the key fob, all of the windows automatically open, releasing all of the hot air from the inside of the vehicle before you step in. This is a life saver in Southern Georgia. The heated leather seats and the sunroof are just bonus features that make me love this truck. In addition, having 4 wheel drive and a big enough bed in the back to haul what I need makes this an extremely functional pick up truck. At the same time, my wife loves driving this truck because it feels like an SUV to her. That's the beauty of the ridgeline is that it looks like a pickup truck but drives and feels like an SUV. The interior cabin is roomy and comfortable, and it is easy to forget that you could easily be towing something like a boat or camper behind you. That's what makes this truck such a perfect family vacation truck. All in all, I hope to continue driving this truck for many years to come, and I would very gladly recommend my to anyone who asks. Hopefully one day my children will be able to call themselves Honda Ridgeline owners, as I can call myself one now. I have the top model RTL with nav for the last 10 years. Very versatile vehicle does everthing you want from hauling bikes to paddle boards to towing your boat. Very durable , I simple cannot kill it. Vehicle is reliable and runs great. Plenty of room to haul different sized items. Only drawback is the gas mileage which is abysmal as far as today's standards are concerned. Simple reliable vehicle with very few problems. Plan to drive it for a few more years. Currently has miles and engine runs very well. Starting to show a little rust. Interior is biggest complaint, the seats really stain if anything gets on them even water leaves a stain. Extremely reliable, seems to be eating the rear brake pads every year. Had them replaced in and , and will need new ones again in It still runs smoothly at , miles, so I will continue to drive it. As with any vehicle, stay on top of the maintenance and you will avoid major repairs. With that said, I prefer the body style over the latest model. Only complaint is I wish it got better gas mileage other than that it's a small super useful truck that handles like a car is comfortable and low maintenance. Cons: 2wd not snow-friendly, lights are very dim at night even with brights, battery in impossible spot you will have to take it in as they have to take everything above it out, very hard to find someone with experience, not a quick change. Big body little space. Bed is way short. Like that bed door can open out or down. Do not like that it is very high but does not include runners had to purchase separately. Mileage not good. Do not like that ignition is not lit have to fumble around. Have never used it. The hooks for tying down items in bed are so very inconvenient. Have to be double jointed or a contortionist. I love the Honda Ridgeline because it has the feel of a regular car but has the cab for hauling when needed. The back seat is roomy enough for tall adults and the seats lift so have plenty of room for other items when traveling. I was worried about not having a truck for grocery or other items that you don't want people to see, but in the cab, there is a compartment that is easy accessible that can fit tons of groceries or other items that can locked away and kept out of site. I love the design and capabilities of ky vehicle, but it has had a lot of mechanical and electrical problems. I have spent a lot to fix it and it still needs more work. I love the trunk for my tools. Although the bed is a bit small. I love the aesthetic look of the vehicle. It is also very difficult to do your own repairs on these types of vehicles due to covers and cramped engine space. While the cab is very comfortable of a ride, visibility is awful. Also gas mileage is not great. We have an issue with the driver seat feeling loose, esp. When coming to a quick stop. When the seat is further forward, the jerking is not noticeable. It did come in handy when we moved last year. This truck is the best decision I have made. I love the drive in it. I have almost no problems with it. Gas does great, it can last me a full week when I fill it up. I love the trunk in the bed of truck. Best feature of all. I would recommend this truck to anyone and everyone. I would like to upgrade to be the newer model. My Honda has been the best investment ever, it has the best AC and in Texas it's the best part of the car. Other than that just having the ability to transport up to 4 other people and having the bed of the trucks to haul off other things or even store things as needed has been extremely usefull I really enjoy this truck. One of the unique features that I love is that there is a trunk under the bed of the truck – as big as a car trunk. I have had no maintenance issues with it except routine. The most expensive was the timing belt changes at It rides very nice. It only tows 4, – so it could use a little more towing capacity, but this is a great vehicle. Currently at , and running like a top. Problems are few, but include timing belt replacement at , miles which is annoying. Reliability is good as we have hardly experienced any trouble. Comfort is good as the cab has full size truck space. The ride is smooth and the engine is very capable. Features such as in bed think and foldable rear seat help when transporting different items. Love my Honda ridgeline, I have miles on it and have had relatively good luck. Has a backseat, drives like a car and still has the truck bed which is super convenient. No real problems. Preforms good. Not the best gas mileage. Runs smooth. Turn radius is large, but not a big deal. Great storage. This truck gets very good mileage. Also, the interior noise is a little loud while driving on the freeway. Love the lockable compartment in the bed. I love my Honda ridgeline! It is very reliable in the winter time and does excellent in snowy conditions. Also because it is one body unit, which is different from other trucks, it handle very stable and well on gravel roads! I have not had any problems with it in the 10 years that I have owned it. I stay on top of the oil changes and other schedule maintenance. It has lots of storage. You will love the trunk that is in the bed of the truck!! I love my vehicle, I haven't had an issues beside the normal maintenance. I do have to update my GPS in the car. The CD will cost I love how the inside is like a SUV but just enough bed in the ack to be a truck. The heated seats are a definite plus. Great truck, great comfort, stylish, great family vehicle, great for haul for camping has a trunk that doubles as an ice chest. I love my car because it is very low maintenance and has good gas mileage. However, I do not like the fact that it does not have a navigation system and the lights do not come on automatically. It is comfortable to ride in with lots of leg and head room. I am a big man so this is important. I like the storage compartments. Change Year. Owner Reviews See below. Expert Review. Pros Like it better than the other trucks. Cons Paint started peeling, probably because of the California weather. Pros I drive it year round. Very happy how it handles in the winter. Very dependable. Pros All rounder comfortable ride and very reliable. Own 2nd Ridgeline. Seems to keep value. Cons Heavy on fuel and some minor items as mentioned. Cons Short bed but you know that getting into it. Pros I love everything about my Ridgeline!! Cons Only issue I've had is she goes thru headlight bulbs pretty good. I've replaced them quite a bit but I've found that the basic bulbs work best so not too pricey. I usually do a good cleaning on connectors and a little bulb grease makes all the difference. Cons The only thing that I wish were different would be the turning radius. Pros all those qualities listed above I love the trunk, the extra storage areas, the ride, and mostly it's dependability. Pros as stated above and will be putting another , miles on it. Cons Have not experienced any cons. Pros We have now retired and are pulling an RPod with it. It handles is very well. Cons we did not put rood rails on it when we bought it.. Pros Very pratical, comfortable, below bed trunk, great ride, and overall tight vehicle. Cons Timing belt not chain. This has been changed in the models. Cons Not great in heavy snow except when chains are used. It's a bit light for heavy duty 4 wheeling although performs well on the road in snow and ice. Additionally, the body panel is all one piece from the doors back, which helps the Ridgeline be considerably stiffer than a separate bed and cab on a ladder frame. The same 3. Front, front side, and side curtain air bags are all standard as well. Four trims comprise the model lineup, with the RT being the entry-level. Steering-wheel mounted cruise control, power door locks, power windows, power mirrors, air conditioning, and a CD player are all standard on the RT. The RTX adds a towing package, inch gray painted alloy wheels, a honeycomb grille, body-color mirrors and door handles, a power driver's seat, a security system, and dual-zone automatic climate control. The RTS receives steering-wheel mounted audio controls, an outside temperature gauge, and an enhanced audio system with a six-disc CD changer. A moonroof, leather seating with power lumbar adjustment, a leather-wrapped steering wheel, HomeLink, XM satellite radio, and a compass are among the enhancements to the RTL trim. Navigation is also an available option with the RTL. Perhaps the most ingenious packaging feature found on the Ridgeline is the trunk. Honda's research showed that lack of lockable storage was a major complaint from pickup truck owners. Designing the truck with a costly, but smooth-riding independent rear suspension allowed them to include a waterproof eight-cubic-foot locking trunk. It can be filled with ice, used as a cooler, and then drained through a plug. The trunk even provides a clean area for the standard mini-spare or the optional full-size spare tire to reside. Accessing the storage well is made much easier by having a tailgate that can both drop, and be swung out to the side. The Ridgeline's bed also offers plenty of clever ideas. It's covered in a tough composite material, and is reinforced with steel cross members. It is five feet long, but thanks to a width of Six tie-down hooks are ideally placed to help secure one or two motorcycles, or an ATV. There are even channels in the bed of the floor and indents in the front of the beds to help keep the motorcycle tires in place. The Ridgeline drives like a brawny Honda Pilot, but its ride is silken when compared to many full-size pickups. The attention to aerodynamic details shows in the quietness of the cabin at all speeds. The interior features many compartments for storage, including an area under the rear seat, and is a veritable triumph of ergonomic engineering. To all those folks that said Honda would never build a conventional pickup truck, they were only partially right. The Ridgeline can do the heavy duty chores of a full-size pickup, but it is a better choice for most family hauling duties. Close this There's a problem loading this menu right now.
