Dodge charger symbol

Dodge is a famous auto making company from the United States, which was established in in Detroit. Since one of the most popular American vehicle manufacturers is the property of Fiat-Chrysler Automobile Group. One of the oldest and most iconic American automaking brands has had a very long and intense visual identity history with eight major logo redesigns. Though the company was established in , its first official logo was introduced only ten years later, in The initial Dodge logo was composed of a circular medallion in white with a monogram enclosed in a double rounded frame. This badge has only stayed with the brand for four years and was the only one in such a light and fancy color palette. In the company introduced its new logo, executed in monochrome, and featuring strong symbols. In the company goes minimalist. The image is composed of two elements â€" two ticks, or V-shaped lines, placed horizontally and pointing to the right. These two stylized arrows feature different thicknesses and lengths â€" the black one is longer and more elegant, which the thick red works as a perfect background. This logo was a symbol of the passion and progress of a famous American brand. The new logo was created for the automaker in It was an abstract image, composed of three black elements, forming two triangles â€" by their contours and in their negative space. The exterior triangle had its sides arched to the center, while the inner one â€" to the outside. This logo only stayed with Dodge for six years. In the brand starts using a simple logotype in scarlet red color. The strong and straight typeface of a slightly italicized lettering looks modern and powerful, and the bright color reflects the energy, dynamics, and passion. The redesign of is not even a redesign, but and extension â€" two thick red rectangles are added to the logotype from up and down. On the upper one, the thin red five-pointed star enclosed in a white pentagon is placed. The bottom red part is plain and solid. The Dodge logo we all know today was designed in It is a black bold logotype in all capitals, accompanied by two diagonal red lines on its right. The Dodge emblem looks simple yet brutal and strong. Its letters, which are black on the official logo, turn into the silver metal on the car emblems, which adds dynamics and volume to the two red diagonals, symbolizing progress and movement. The head in red features sleek stylized lines, which are balanced by a simple shield framing, repeating a pentagon with its peak down. Dodge RAM started to use its own official logo in The lettering was executed in an extra-bold sans-serif typeface, where all the letters looked solid and powerful in their red color. The logo was redesigned in Dodge Viper is the second most popular car model of the American manufacturer. The logo of this super at fully reflects the mood and individual character of the vehicle. Since the introduction of the car in , its visual identity has undergone two redesigns. All of the created version had three things in common â€" a pentagon shield as the framing, a monochrome color palette, and an image of a viper snake as the main element. Dodge Logo. Updated: Chevrolet Camaro Dodge Charger Ford Mustang Its headquarters is located in Highland Park, the suburb of Detroit, the state of Michigan. Eight years after the death of brothers, in , the company belonged to the Chrysler Corporation. The very first and original Dodge logo was round with two interconnected triangles, a six-pointed star in the center. The emblem loomed at the plant of Dodge from to There are two basic versions of the logo emerging, and they both are rather veracious: The first one is connected with the family blazon of the brothers John and Horace Dodge, or a flexural exhaust pipe of the first Dodge car reminded of the twisted horns of a mountain ram â€" it is not known for sure. But the fact is that the redhead of the ram with twisted horns identifies the American company cars even up to now. There is one more fact: the logo with an image of the ram had been once fixed on the Dodge trucks, but was then taken off. Gradually the ram heads began to appear on pickups and trucks. From , this symbol was used on all vehicles, except Viper. The silver tint signifies purity, dignity, sophistication, and greatness of Dodge, and the red one symbolizes enthusiasm, energy, intimacy, and excitement. The Dodge emblem has a custom-made type of letters. There is a version that the year may be the last for the Dodge brand, as the cars of this brand are not going to be in the future model lineup of the group Fiat-Chrysler. Dodge has manufactured three different generations of automobiles under the name Challenger. So it was only natural that the Dodge Challenger logo has been modified more than once in the course of time. Also, there has been a plainer logotype featuring a minimalistic sans serif font. The Dodge Viper logo has gone through not less than three modifications, becoming more and more aggressive. The original version, launched in , was nicknamed Sneaky Pete. The original Dodge logo adopted in featured a six-pointed star created by two intertwined triangles. The Dodge Charger logo features a simple monolinear sans serif typeface. One of its distinctive features is a delicate balance of rounded and almost right angles. However, the earliest Charger badge looked completely different featuring a handwritten script wordmark.
