Most laptops do include some sort of Bluetooth functionality, however, this is often a type of Bluetooth intended solely for mice and keyboards; not for streaming audio. In order to stream audio via Bluetooth, your laptop will need to be compatible with the A2DP Bluetooth profile which is common in most phones and tablets, but not as popular in laptops or other computers. It's possible that your laptop could connect to a Bluetooth speaker even without the A2DP profile, but you will very likely experience playback issues no sound or drop-outs or you will be unable to use the speaker as an audio output device. If you're experiencing issues playing back audio from a laptop, try your speaker with a smartphone or tablet before assuming something is wrong with the speaker. Also, be wary of inexpensive USB Bluetooth dongles which promise to add Bluetooth to older computers that don't already have

This is my second Ion Block Rocker. My first one lasted about 10 years. We had years of enjoyment with it and decided it was time for an upgrade. Just got this Block Rocker Plus today. Blue Tooth connected easily to my IPhone. It came almost fully charged out of the box. The sound is clear and crisp. The radio works well without an antenna indoors. I expect it to work even better when I set it up outdoors. ION has exceeded my expectations once again. Images in this review. This block rocker plus kicks ass. We got to use this for the first time at my daughters wedding rehearsal dinner. It was the hit of the party. I recommend this for all occasions. I have used many of these Ion products. The Block Rocker Plus has a lot of boom and bass. I do not care for the bass so much however if you are looking to bring the party this can be a great choice as it packs a great punch, especially using Bluetooth. I returned this product because the battery died within 24 hours after fully charging the product multiple times. The life is supposed to be 50 hours. Another reason and another star off of the review was the FM radio reception. It is horrible. I live in the middle of the city and could not get any stations in clearly. I work outdoors therefore there is no interference from being inside of buildings. Ion needs to put an external antenna back on the outside of their units. I purchased a new battery for my old block rocker, and will replace the old dead battery Which lasted about two years. Sound is good and plenty loud for a party. Can hear a block away. Big speaker but not too heavy to lift. Rolls nicely on wheels. I measured top volume to be 73 decibels but I didn't add bass boost to that. Bluetooth connects easily and from some distance. I also tried similar EcoXGear speaker. That one is heavy to lift into car, but more rugged. It got to 83 decibels. Didn't have a microphone but could take one. Ion includes a mic. About equal sound quality between the two speakers. I recommend either, depending on your needs. This is the newer model of the block rocker and it sounds great with simple features. Bluetooth connects easily and the mic is plug and play and has an on and off switch on it for easy operation. Sound quality is great even at high levels without distorting and it is very loud! Never had the volume knob above half way and its plenty of sound for me. Great bang for your buck. I purchased this to use at work. I have many speakers, so I did not need this one. I clean at a school and wanted to have one just to leave at work that is loud. I have others that are very loud, but don't want to leave them behind. I charge this every three days, and use this about six hours each night. I use an iPod connected to this and play my Amazon music. I have this on the loud side, so most of us can hear the music. We use radios for communication, and sometimes I miss a call, oops the music is loud. I play sixties and seventies rock music and it sound great. If we ever drop it down the stairs and break it I will purchase again. I think of this as ours at work, not just mine. I share what I have and some want to buy one. I like how it has wheels and a telescoping handle, great for moving it around. I usually have this on my cleaning cart an old metal thing I turned into a cleaning cart. Here's the DEAL So less then 3 hours A day for two days and it's dead I will try the 50 watt because the sound was good enough and the Am radio did NOT work to listen to my favorite football talk show So I will try the Tailgator original For the antenna and hoping the sound is as good and battery last as advertised! I will be buying the NEW old model of the tailgator. By OntheBlitzTv on October 31, See all reviews. Top reviews from other countries. Ok, you get what you pay for, sound quality is not ideal at full blast. However, anything comparable in terms of output and portability easily costs 2 or 3 times as much. For it's price, this devices defends itself very well in the outdoors. PROS: - Handy wheels, telescoping handle and 3 carving handles Makes for easy lugging around despite its 20lbs weight - Very good Bluetooth range - Very good battery life Only used it for a couple weeks, we'll see how it handles in the future. To mitigate the effect, use an equalizer to lower the bass tones. I've had it for several months and it produces decent sound quality, with a BASE enhancement button which I find I always need to use on most albums that I play through the unit. Despite another review comment below I Charge it on the Weekend, and it lasts me right through to Friday the following week on one charge, playing an average of 3 hours per day. It comes with a basic, cheap microphone if you want to sing through the unit, but I just Link it VIA Blue Tooth from my cell phone where I have all my music downloaded on. Hopefully I get 3 or 4 years on the Original Battery, but then I would assume I could open it up and swap it out for a new one not sure about that though until the day comes Basically it has a CAR BATTERY inside it, so like any car battery the life of it will eventually run out after so many charges. Still good unit, and it goes quite loud. I only have to turn it up just a tiny bit and that's plenty loud enough where I work. We are performing artist and have been using this all summer for outdoor shows and small events, we never even needed to use the sound at its max yet, this thing is loud and the sound quality is good and we are picky about that kind of stuff. The battery life completely blew our mind, it took weeks before we even needed to charge it for the first time. It is super easy to carry, the design is perfect and looks so good. I higly recommand, you can't go wrong here. The speaker is great and works well via Bluetooth for any device, but the microphone is terrible. After two weeks it stopped working. I contacted customer support at Ion and they finally responded but stopped replying and did not replace my microphone. I like the portability of the unit. The sound is good. More items to explore. Seriously, alternatives in the price range don't even come close. Over months of use this only happened a few times though. But if you're financially unlimited, of course, there are better ones out there. This device has a lot of potential. I bought it based on the recommendation of someone I know that has one. Unfortunately, mine doesn't work right out of the box. The device doesn't charge the internal battery and only works when plugged into the wall. That defeats the point of a portal, rechargeable speaker system. It turns out the number provided with the included documentation was not correct or the best number. My wife found a different number on their website and was actually able to talk to a person after a week of trying the previous numbers. The representative apologized for the mix up and said they'd send a replacement battery out as soon as possible. We intended to take this with us on a vacation next week, so we are hoping the battery arrives by the end of the week. I'll update the review later based on receipt of the battery, etc. There is certainly nothing near this price range with better sound. Wow, this is an impressive speaker setup! It's huge, and loud. The rechargeable battery makes for a great portable stereo, the sound quality is decent and it even comes with a cheap mic for announcements. There aren't any eq settings, you will need to use the EQ on your phone or other device to tune it. As it comes, the sound output is relatively flat, a little bass heavy. Just the way I like it. Mine came fully charged, and I haven't had a chance to see how long it really lasts on battery, but other reviews are promising. I'll have to leave it unplugged from the wall for a week and see if it keeps up. It's not a little thing you can carry around every day. It will take up a sizable chunk of your trunk space, and you have to tote it around with the extending handle and wheels. However, if you want great music at the beach or in your garage, it is the best portable speaker I've found. You simply can't make true bass from a tiny speaker. One person found this helpful. Brian W. Ewert Top Contributor: Guitars. It's decent. I've read some of the negative reviews and can respond to those. First off, I'm an audiophile and have never had less than 7 speaker systems in my car s and currently have 9 speakers in the car I drive now - self installed. This portable ION box has an 8 inch woofer and about a 1. Not too tinny, not too bassy, etc. Nice tonal quality. Someone said the Tuner was weak - not true - I dialed in a classical station that is always a little fuzzy, down low on the FM dial, and it sounded better than I expected. So I'm pleased with the tuner. Someone said the telescoping handle was weak and flimsy and that's just the way they're made. The one on my high end Jensen tool box was the same way, as are the ones on our luggage; so pleased again. Something from a store in which you could have tested it for your needs - pscht! Someone said that the microphone is junk - it is. I can tell just by holding it. If it was worth anything it would have come in a padded zip-to-close case and weighed 5x as much as it does. Regardless, I plugged it in and gave it a try - it's junk - lol. Any amplifier is going to eventually start clipping as the volume amplitude maxis out Which brings me to my final point. The JVC Kaboom boxes are the loudest, best sounding, most dependable portable systems I've ever used outside of a full blown PA and the Kaboom boxes have a limiter that controls distortion levels - nice See all reviews.
